PIERRE CARDIN

Legendary French designer and innovator, Pierre Cardin after graduating as an architect, started his fashion designer career after the Second World War under the guidance of the renowned master in the field, Christian Dior.

In 1950, he sets up his own fashion house and three years later becomes a member of the prestigious Chambre Syndicale de la Haute Couture.

In 1959, he enters history and conceives the revolutionary idea of a ready to wear collection (Pret à porter), bringing high fashion to the general public.

Besides clothes and accessories Pierre Cardin designs furniture, interior decors as well as contributing to the automobile and aircraft industries as well as many others.

Since 1991 he has held the coveted title of honorary ambassador of the UNESCO as well as a goodwill envoy of the United Nations.

Pierre Cardin has received an incredible number of highest awards and decorations all over the world, including several times the famous Dé d'Or (Golden Timble), the highest recognition in French Haute Couture.

In 1992, he became the first French designer to enter the French Academy of Fine Arts.

This collection of original and elegant products has been carefully produced using selected materials and created to emphasize every detail and catch the eye of the most demanding recipients.

History confirms that Pierre Cardin is not only a fashion trade mark but above all a durable symbol of timelessness.

When, with closed eyes, on a hot afternoon,
The scent of thine ardent breast I inhale Celestial vistas my spirit assail;
Caressed by the flames of an endless sun.
A languorous island, where Nature abounds
With exotic trees and luscious fruit;
And with men whose bodies are slim and astute,
And with women whose

"From whence it comes, you ask, this gentle, mute. Like waves that o'er the rocky headland fall?" When once our hearts gathered in their fruit. To live is a curse! a secret known to all. A grief too simple, rough't mysterious. And like your joy for all, both loud and shrill. No cease to clamour, be not e'er so curious! And yet although your voice is sweet, Be still! Be still. O soul, with rapture ever rife! O mouth, with the childish smile! Far more than Life, The subtle bonds of Death around us twine. Let let my heart, the wine of falsehood drink.

My sister, my dear Consider how fair.
Together to live it would be!
Down yonder to fly To love, till we die, In the land which resembles thee.
Those suns that rise Neath erratic skies. No charm could be like unto theirs So strange and divine. Like those eyes of thine Which glow in the midst of their tears. There, all order and loveliness. Luxury, calm and voluptuousness. The tables and chairs Polished bright by the years. Walls decorate sweetly our rooms. And the rarest of flowers Would twine round
our bowers And mingle their amber perfumes. The ceilings arched. A mirrors inlaid. This Eastern splendour among. Would furtively steal and appeal

*What sayest thou, to right, poor soul so drear. What sayest heart erewhile engulfed in gloom. To the very lovely, very chaste, and very dear.
Whose god-like look hath made thee to re-bloom? To her, with pride we chant an echoing Hymn. For naught can touch the sweetness of her sway;
Her flesh ethereal as the seraphim.
Her eyes with robe of light our souls array. And be it in the night, or solitude. Among the streets or 'mid the multitude. Her shadow, torch-like, dances in the air. And murmurs.
"I, the Beautiful proclaim - That for my sake, alone ye love the Fair:
I am the Guardian Angel. Muse and Dame!"*
